Welcome to Music Garden. This is a radio show and I can give you a wonderful Saturday night. I'm Lulu Lin. It's time for the most popular songs of the week. William Brown's "Perhaps" is a new song and it comes in at No.5 this week. "Say I Love You" by Power Band stays in the same place at No.4. "The butterflies" by Cindy Black drops down from No.2 to No.3. And No.2 is another new song called "May I talk to you?" by Broken Heart. Finally, there's no change at No.1, with "Magic Moon" by Smart Machine. Many people are calling in for this song, so let's listen to it right now. And don't go away. Later we will talk over the phone with Smart Machine about their plans for the coming year.

Daylight Saving Time (DST) is the practice of setting the clocks one hour before standard time to make use of more sunlight in the spring, summer, and fall evenings. 1908, people in Port Arthur, Ontario—today's Thunder Bay—turned their clocks forward by one hour to start the world's first DST period. Germany was the first country in the world to use DST for the purpose of saving fuel in wartime. Soon, the United Kingdom, France, and many other countries followed the idea. Most of them turned back to standard time after World War I. When the next World War happened, DST was in use again in most of Europe. Today, most countries in Europe follow DST, starting from the last Sunday of March to the last Sunday of October. In the USA, the clocks move forward an hour on the second Sunday in March, and on the first Sunday of November, they go back.

Daylight Saving Time has been used for over 100 years, but there is still never-ending debate about it. Some say that they can use one more hour of daylight for doing sports, like golf, soccer, baseball, running, etc. Longer evenings are also good for business because people have more time to go shopping or to restaurants. But some find that at the start of DST, people may have car accidents or get hurt at the workplace because they don't have enough sleep. And the early evening darkness after the end of the DST period may make people feel sad and not want to do anything.
