【41-43】

Have you ever heard of “Work smarter, not harder?” It’s a motto that people have lived by for years. It mainly means using your thinking skills to minimize tasks and needless steps, so that you use your time wisely to get things done quickly. Now, the question is: how do you work smarter, not harder? Take a look at the tips below and see how you can put this motto to use in your life.

- 1. Put your tasks in order. Make sure you’re working from the 80/20 rule. If you have 10 things on your to-do list, two of them will be more important than the other eight. Put the items in your to-do list in order of importance and follow it, and you can be much more productive.
- 2. Don’t work hour after hour. Divide your work into parts. Be sure to take a quick break or a fast walk to refresh yourself after each task. Studies show that you will be far more productive if you take one or two days off than working for non-stop seven days. It’s the same with the hours of your day. Taking a small break will clear your head and should give you some fresh thoughts. However, most people spend 50% of their time doing activities that have nothing to do with their task while they’re at work. Break the time-wasting habits of using social media, checking email, taking long lunch breaks, and chatting with co-workers.
- 3. Don’t multitask. As much as we love to do so, multitasking can actually cause more trouble (and work) than needed. Shifting among tasks can cost you up to 40 percent of productive time. Paying attention to each task you do will make you highly productive. Work on one task at a time and finish that task before moving on to the next.
- 4. Use your “GPS.” Mitzi Weinman explains GPS as a goal in her book, It’s About Time! According to Weinman, it can give you the whole picture of your task. Also, “GPS” can help you set goals for each of those steps until it is done. Always ask yourself “why” you are doing something to make sure you are on the right track.

43. According to the reading, which is TRUE?
(A) Working on several tasks at a time saves you lots of time.
(B) The longer working time you have, the more productive you’ll be.
(C) With the “GPS”, you are able to shift among tasks without difficulties.
