Is it difficult for you to remember English words? Or sometimes you may find that writing stories or painting pictures is hard. Well, how about (46)? Studies have shown that colors have a lot to do with our brains and minds, which leads to different results of our memory span and creation.

Scientists already successfully did a test and found out (47) colors can affect us. They invited people to take the test with either red or blue computer screens. The group of test-takers (48) used red screens were found to get higher points on memory tests while the blue screen test-takers were found to more creative.

Although it may sound strange, it surely makes sense. What comes to mind when you think of red? Fire trucks, stop signs, and your teacher's red pen may just pop up. These are the things that make us pay more attention and remember them. (49), blue things, such as a blue sky and a beach with blue sea, can help relax us. When we are relaxed, it's much easier to come up with creative ideas.

From now on, start marking important information that you want to remember with a red pen. Then use a blue one when you need to create new things. By following this advice, (50).

Many people dream of getting close to nature. But they think that sleeping in a tent on the hard ground isn't very comfortable. RVs offer a great choice for those who want to experience the outdoors while still enjoying many comforts from home.

An RV is a recreational vehicle with sleeping accommodations inside. The accommodations can be very basic or very expensive. These traveling homes come in different sizes, shapes and prices. From nearly 14-meter motorhomes that sleep up to 10 people to campers that sleep one or two.

People who are very rich can rent motorhomes with surprisingly large rooms, TVs with big screens, fireplaces, heated floors and more. But for the family which is not that rich, reasonably priced RVs still offer small kitchens, bathrooms and bedrooms. For travelers alone, a truck camper that sleeps one person is perfect.

According to a 2020 report, the number of RVs among younger people is growing. What's more, RV parks, where RV lovers usually get together, are popping up everywhere. At different kinds of RV parks, sometimes people can have free Wi-Fi, free breakfast, swimming pools and more.

Perhaps one of the greatest presents for becoming an RVer is the RV community itself. Campers are usually friendly people with welcoming hearts and a common love of the outdoors. In an RV park, you might meet families on weekend trips or couples who live in their motorhomes. As you share stories around the fire at night, it's easy to make lasting friendships.

Another great reason to try RVing is the fact that it's about 60 percent cheaper than a traditional vacation. You'll save a lot on your next road trip. Your home is wherever you park it.

Climate has changed a lot in the past twenty years. Scientists studying climate change have told us that we must change the way we live in order to deal with the problem, the warming of the earth. All people around the world must try our best to stop the rise of the world's temperature. However, scientists find that we are moving to a 3°C increase.

Though the world is facing this big problem, governments in each country do very little to deal with it. The young people who are worried about their future have decided to take the lead. One famous example is a 16-year-old Swedish girl, Greta Thunberg. She gave up going to school to draw attention to climate change. After that, students from all around the world walk out of school to make world leaders notice their action and get public help. Now school walkouts for the climate are everywhere.

Extreme weather is increasing. Forest fires are common headline news now. Extreme heat is becoming more and more common in many countries. The young students who miss their classes make us know we will face the warming of the earth. This is the biggest problem we have ever had. It's time to take action. They tell their governments to do something about it. They say that there is no point in going to school because there is no future.

If governments keep doing nothing to stop the rising temperature, the young people will be those who face the problem in the future. Those who are under 20 now will live in a world with extreme high temperature. That's why scientists from around the world support the children who walk out of their schools and ask the government to take action right now. If everyone starts to do something to deal with the problem, we might be able to stop the rise in temperature.
