Dear all~

My name is Cindy. I am a cook. I am looking for a new house for my family. My grandparents are old, so they can't go up and down the stairs. My parents like flowers, so they need a place for them. My sister is in grade nine. She needs her own room to study and rest in. My brother is a teacher in Xingya junior high school. He doesn't have a car or a scooter, so he needs to take a bus or the MRT to work. There is also a cute dog in our family. If there are any good houses you know, please send a message to me. Thank you very much!

Do you know there is a county in Europe, where kids don't have to take exams? They go to school for only four hours a day. They have almost zero homework, and they even have the longest vacations. Welcome to Finland, a country in the north Europe. Here, school works very differently. Kids have no homework because they realize that in most countries, more homework means worse grades. Teachers here teach more with games than books because that's how kids learn best. There is no national exam in the country until the age of sixteen. And even that is optional. And the best part, school is free for every single student which means that the rich and the poor kids get the same education. Surprisingly, this system works. 99 percent of kids in Finland can read and write. Finland knows that school is much more than just learning math and science. It's about learning how to live.
